PETROLEUM.

The pouring rain was falling fast, As through the "Horseneck" regions passed An Oil Creek man, 'mid mud and slosh, Who threw up his hat and cried, "By gosh!
Petroleum!"

His cheeks were pale, his eyes were bright;
As a flash from his patent kerosene light;
His boots as they sank in the greasy ground, Splashed out the oily, melodious sound—
Petroleum!

In strike prospective did he sell An hundred thousand barrels well.
Above—the claims he didn't own,
That from his heart drew forth a groan, Petroleum!

"Sink not the well!" his conscience said;
"Too big a sink may strike you dead."
Up goes the derrick, down goes the bore, Up comes the sand-dump. "What's flowing o'er?" Petroleum!

"Sell out!" cried prudence. "Take a nap In Madame Fortune's uncanny lap." Two bony tears fell from each eye, "She'll flow more yet," was his reply.
Petroleum!

Beware, she'll gloat out, like many a well, Or meet with an accident; no one can tell;
A hundred usurers, in a flowing well, "I don't care a fig!" cried he, "I won't sell."
Petroleum!

The very next day the tubing burst;
The gas was so strong. That's not the worst—
The well caved in, and the current of oil Driven back to its crevice, burst through the soil. Petroleum!

A drowned corpse was next day found, Half buried in the greasy ground;
Still grasping in his hand the bore,
That augured luck to him no more.
Petroleum!

There in the dirt and mud he lay Lifeless—and slowly melting away;
At last from the depths of five hundred feet, Gurgled a faint sound, gily and sweet—
Petroleum!

REBEL VIEW OF NEW YORK.

The Secessionist Newspapers. The Peace Men and Southern "Sneaks."

Ed Pollard, one of the editors of the Richmond Examiner, and author of The Southern History of the War, who was recently captured on board a blockade runner and subsequently exchanged, passed a week in New York on parole. His observations during this period were duly recorded, after his return to Richmond, in the Examiner of the 13th of January. The following passages are entertaining:

"HALF-DRUNK SECESSES" BEFORE AND AFTER THE ELECTION.
* * * The fall of Atlanta gave new lease to the war, and aside from that event it would have fallen through from the incoherence of the materials which at that time composed the Democratic party. In fact, like all other Yankee minorities, it went to pieces and was swallowed up in the Presidential election, and may be said to have practically disappeared since then from the political arena, where, if it shows itself at all, it is only in mock combat. It was but to observe, as the writer did, the drama of the Presidential campaign in that city of immense sensations, New York to get directly before one's eyes the peculiar and unparalleled cowardice and subservency of the Yankee in his parties and political organizations.— Some days before the election New York was incandescent with revolution.
Processions flaunted banners and pasteboard through the streets, snattered with what was in Washington definition downright treason. The hotels and bar-rooms were choked with Secesh—vociferous, defiant, and generally half drunk.
Yet when Butler came, all this clamor and show left the stage as suddenly as one of Heller's spectacles, if not like it, in a flash of brimstone, and in one week's time men whose mouths have been filled with the fumes of revolution, and who had been breathing fire and slaughter were as quiet as whipped curs, and not a whit more dangerous. Of course the Yankee papers interpreted this exhibition of cowardly submission as a virtuous and magnificent acquiescence in the will of the majority—a triumph of republican institutions and all that sort of nonsense—and what was actually a display of the wretched time-serving of Yankee minorities, was put before the world, by the effrontery of the New York Herald and the ignorance of Prof.
Goldwin Smith, as the sublime spectacle of patriotic self negation and infinite moral virtue in Yankee politics. The writer has asserted that there is little, very little left of any peace party in the North at the present time. It is necessary to distinguish the remnant of this organization from certain other sentiments in the North with which it has been frequently confounded.

THE NEW YORK "WORLD."

Those people in the North who sym-patize with the South, or affect any consideration for it, may be conveniently divided into three classes. First, we may enumerate the so-called War Democrats. They affect great virtue on account of their opposition to Abraham Lincoln, but are quite ambidexter upon the issue of peace, all they have ever said upon the termination of the war being nothing more than a whine of hypocrisy, as from time to time the military successes of the confederacy have extorted it. While playing their part against Abraham Lincoln, in which, in fact, they have no higher aim than partisan office or public plunder, they attempt a popular compensation for this pretending a virtuous attachment to the constitutional Union, occasionally throwing into their opinions a little spice of blackguardism about the extreme men of the Confederacy.

These opinions are well exemplified in that famous sheet, the New York World, and that nose-of-wax, McClellan. We will find the editor of this paper one day emptying his pot of fifth on Mr.
Lincoln, and the next day making a sort of popular amende and squaring his accounts with the vulgar by low things at the South and a style of double entendre that shows a wonderful proficiency in blackguard scholarship. The writer was told that the editor of the World was at the bottom a Peace man, but had found it necessary for the influence of his paper, to use the pretense of Constitutional Union to catch the fools who believed in the possibility of such a thing —an example not only of newspaper morals, but a damning evidence of incoherence and rottenness of the so-called Democratic party in the North, which finds such base equivocation necessary to sustain it.

"WORTHLESS" SYMPATHIZERS WITH THE REBELS.
In the second class of Southern sympatizers we may place that large number of persons in the North who persistently deny the right and policy of secession, but who feel for the people of the Confederacy when they read of their suffering and think they have been too terribly punished for their error. This sympathy is purely sentimental, and is quite worthless. It abounds in the parlors of New York. There are numbers of people in the North—ladies who have not unsexed themselves, and men who have not sold their responsibilities to the demon of faction—who are horrified and indignant at the cruelties of the war and who pity our exiled women and houseless little children, but they will not admit the justice of the Confederate cause and concede nothing to us but vague and ruthless commiseration. It is very easy to sit in a cushioned chair with a full stomach, and sympathize.
The South does not want such sentimentality. She asks for her justification the eyes of God and man, and disdains the pity that, denying it, offers a comfort that dishonors her. She will be content with no abridgment of her rights. She has no claim on man's charity, no beggar's plea for the half-pence and broken dishes of Northern philanthropy.

THE PEACE PARTY WEAK.

In the third place we come to the peace party proper of the North. It is composed of those who think that the war is essentially a crime and an outrage; that amelioration of it will not do; that it is quite as much the interest of the North as of the South to stop it; that the South represents in it not only her constitutional rights, but the traditions of the past and the whole cause of American liberty, and that in the defeat of the Confederate arms must go down the liberty of the North along with the independence of the South. Such intelligent sympathy is of real value to the South, but the party which goes so far is much weaker in numbers than is generally supposed by the Confederate people, and may be counted by hundreds, while the other classes, who all come by very violent connection under the common catchword of "secesh," number thousands. It is especially represented by the New York News, a newspaper which is a marked exception to the rules of Yankee journalism in its decency and humanity of style, no less than in the real value of its arguments, and which may be taken as one undoubted, however small, example of Northern virtue in this war.

While referring to party opinion in the North, the writer may extend allusion to a certain ill defined collection found in the bulk of Southern refugees and residents in the North. These derelict Confederates are the most contemptible of creatures. There are exceptions some few and honorable men detained in the North by the confines of their domestic life, doing good work, contributing to our prisoners, not noisy in their demonstrations, but holding their opinions decorously within the pale of the close society of those who think with them. But there are hundreds and thousands of these sympathetic absolutes, who, in the spirit of sheer cowardice and grossest selfishness, exploit their Southern patriotism in the garish hotels of New York, and are trying to pass their time pleasantly among the creature comforts of Yankeeedom, while the beloved people of the South are left to take for themselves all the privation and risk of war. Many of them live extravagantly, not a few gamble in gold rooms, and these refugees, dough-faced adventurers, fugitives from conscription, and cowards of every stripe, who are bloating and pampering themselves in Yankeeedom, talk "secesh" as loudly and bravely in the New York Hotel as in the Spottsylvania House at Richmond.

Despite the civilities the writer met with in this house, and its singular freedom from the pinchbeck of Yankee hotel life, he must remember occasions of disgust in seeing so many spruce refugees feasting and whining, and guz-zling in delicate sops of New York luxury, talking Southern patriotism as fierce as baited bears, and in the next breath comparing their gains in cotton, and the profits of their last mysterious trips to Nashville and New Orleans. It is singular that this class are always the trumpeters of President Davis. They are so excessively patriotic that they worship him morning, day and night; they resent everything that does not represent the Confederacy in the colors of the rose, and every expression of Southern opinion, no matter what its manly and incontestable proofs of attachment to the Confederate cause, that implies mistake on the part of President Davis, is fiercely denounced and forthwith tomahawked by these vagabond knights of secession.

The writer was informed that this peculiar Davis mania, at the expense of everybody else and every interest else in the Confederacy, prevails as much among the Confederate absenteees and sympathizers in London and Paris, as well as in New York. This is not unaccountable, at least in good part. Many of these creatures are the agents and emissaries of President Davis, and through his partiality are reaping rich pecuniary reward in pretending to be political adventurers in the North and in Europe, and in flying certain financial kites for the benefit of their pockets.

That a certain friend of his had gone to Richmond to lay before the authorities, by which millions of dollars were to be raised in Europe after the approved fashion of extracting snubbeams from cucubers.

The sympathizers the writer has described may well dread the party South sworn to uphold the standards of citizenship and society. The Confederacy is pledged to disown those when their tardy steps shall be turned toward our liberated country, and jealously resolved to preserve the fruits of our independence for those who have watered them with their blood, or brought them to their perfection by their unwearied labor and sincere solitude.

The Bangor Mercury says, when Henry Ward Beecher visited the city to deliver some lectures, a year or two since, he rode from Waterville on the box, when Sam, a young but favorite driver, was in charge of the team. Sam drove the team; through at the rate of twelve miles an hour, anticipating by to or three hours the usual time of arriving. The proprietor of the line inquired of him the next day how he came to drive so fast.

"O," said he, "I had one of the boys on the box, and he wanted to see 'em go and I put 'em through!"

Born Satisfied.—A man by the name of Land, living in Illinois, was presented by his wife, of a fine boy. They were long in a quandary as to what they should name him. The man, being a rabid secessionist, was wont to call him after a Southern General, while, on the other hand, the wife, being Union, was desirous that her offspring should be named after some Union General. They finally patched up a compromise, the wife to give the first name, and the husband the second, to be an initial. The wife was not long in making up her mind, and christened him Dix Land, as she said Gen. Dix was her favorite among the Union heroes. Her husband, who was somewhat of a wag, said his choice among the rebels was Early, and the boy's name should be Dix E. Land.
The wife wilted.

Water-Proof Soles.—If hot tar is applied to boot soles it will make them water-proof. Let it be as hot as the leather will bear without injuring it, apply it with a swab, and dry it in by the fire.
The operation may be repeated two or three times during the Winter, if necessary. It makes the surface of the leather quite hard, so that it wears longer as well as keeps out the water. Oil or grease softens the sole, and does not do much in keeping the water out. It is a good plan to provide boots for Winter during Summer, and prepare the soles by tar-ring, as they will then become hard, before they are wanted to wear, almost as firm as horn, and will wear twice as long as those unprepared.

The funniest story of this age is told by a Detroit paper. A lady suspected her husband of improper intimacy with the hired girl. Without informing her husband of her intentions, she sent the girl off, and that night went to sleep in the girl's bed. She hadn't been there long when some one else came in and took the other half of the bed. About two hours after, the wife rose, intending to reveal the intended infidelity of her spouse, struck a light, when, lo! it was the servant man!

A SALT PONTER.—Amusing incidents sometimes occur in the midst of a fight.
When our fellows burst over the works in the capture of Fisher's Hill, John Quinlan, one of the very first, sprang astride of a rebel gun shouting "My gun! I've captured you, be jabsers!" The next instant he rolled off, clapping his hand ad posteriorum, and bellowing, "Och! holy mother of Moses, sure it's red hot!" The gun had been so heated by firing that the hand could not be borne upon it.

Take care of your neighbors; don't let them stir without watching—they may do something wrong if you do. To be sure, you never knew them to do anything very bad, but it may be on your account that they have not; perhaps if it had not been for your kind care, they might have disgraced themselves long ago. Therefore don't relax any effort to keep them where they ought to be.
Never mind your own business—that will take care of itself!

The Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, E. A. Rollins, has written a letter to Joseph Kelly of New York, wherein he declares that the income tax lists must be kept open to the inspection of any and all persons who wish to review them. They are public property, and "must be open to the inspection of any and all persons seeking information on the subject."

A jockey furnishes some hints as to how to sell your horse: "I tell you it's all by comparison—have the critter for sale long side of a scrub—ain't one in fifty but what'll get fooled. They look first at the scrub and then at the other, and they think it is a 'strodinary critter.
That's the way I came it on Jenkins, the livery man, with that gray colt."

A gentleman dining at a hotel where servants were few and far between, dispatched a lad among them for a plate of pudding. After a long time the lad returned, and placing it before the hungry gentleman, he asked, "Are you the lad who took my plate for this pudding?"
"Yes, sir," "Bless-me," resumed the hungry wit, "how you have grown!"

Some years ago, it is said, a party was travelling in a stage through the Jersey pines, and saw in the distance what they supposed was the frame of a log house. On approaching they found it was the skeleton of a mosquito which had starved to death, the flesh having fallen from the bones.

QUINCY.

SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1865.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The following is the President's Inaugural Message:

FELLOW COUNTRYMEN: At this second appearing to take the oath of the Presidential office, there is less occasion for extended address than there was at first. Then a statement somewhat in detail of the course to be pursued seemed fitting and proper. Now at the expiration of four years, during which time public declarations have been constantly called forth on every point and phase of the great contest which still absorbs and engrosses the energies of the nation, little that is new can be presented. The progress of our arms, on which all else chiefly depends, is as well known to the public as to myself, and is, I trust, reasonably satisfactory, encouraging with high hopes for the future. No prediction in regard to it had been ventured on the occasion corresponding to this four years ago. All thoughts were then anxiously directed to the impending civil war; all dread it, all sought to avert it; and while my inaugural address, then being delivered from this place, was devoted altogether to saving the Union, the insurgent agents were in this city seeking to destroy without war—seeking to disavow the Union and divide its effects by negotiation. Both parties deprecated war, but one of them would make war rather than let the nation survive, and the other would accept war rather than let it perish; and war came. One-eighth of the population were colored slaves, not distributed generally over the Union but localized in the Southern part of it. These slaves constituted a peculiarly powerful influence. All know this interest was somehow the cause of the war. To strengthen this institution and extend its influence was the object for which the insurgents would rend the Union by war, while the Government claimed no right to do more than restrict territorial extension of it. Neither party expected for war, the magnitude of duration which it attained; neither anticipated that the course of conflict might cease, or the event happen before the conflict itself should cease. Each looked for easier triumph and result, less fundamental and astounding. Both read the same bible prayer to the same God. Each invokes His aid against the other. It may seem strange that any men should ask God's assistance in warring their bread from the sweat of other men's; but let us judge not that we may not be judged. The prayers of both could not be answered; that neither has been answered fully. The Almighty has His own purpose. We to the world because of offenses, for it must needs be that offences come, but woe to that man by whom the offense cometh. If we should suppose that American Slavery is one of the offenses, the Providence of God must need come, but this having continued through his appointed time, He now will more than he gives to both North and South this terrible war as woe due to those by whom the offense came. Shall we discern that there was any departure from these divine attributes, which believers in the Living God always ascribe to Him. Fondly as we hope for the event, do we pray that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away.

Yet if God will that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondsmen's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be true that the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. With malice towards none, with charity to all, with a firmness of right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in, and bind up the material wounds, care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow, and his orphan, and do all which we may to achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.

Nevada.—The Gold Hill News published an article finding fault with the Nevada Legislature for allowing a certain bill which the Legislature considered unjust. The Carson Post answers as follows:

Well, what of that, swindlers are the order of the day, and why should you, you infernal old hypocrite, snarl about a few hundred dollars. You might as well complain because the Legislature allowed our friend the Unreliable, four or five hundred dollars for services as official reporter, previous to his election to perform the arduous duties of that office. Why, you old stupid don't you know that the State was made to be plucked, and the Honorable, the Senate and the Assembly, would feel that they had been direct in duty if they left a pin feather on the old carcass. We know what's the matter, your mad because you lost the State Printing, and can't get to work on time for Miss Nevada. That's what's the matter.

INCOME TAX LIST.—In another column can be found a list of the names of all persons in Plumas and Lassen counties, who were assessed on incomes for the year 1863. We shall comment upon the Assessment published and the Federal Revenue Law in regard to incomes in our next issue.

THE THEATER OF WAR.—The combinations of Grant have contracted the theater of grand operations to the State of North Carolina and the small section of Virginia between the James and the Roanoke—a region having a breadth of about 200 miles and 250 miles in length. Within a few days there will be a still greater reduction in the area of the arena of the contending hosts. Taking Raleigh as the central pivot point, the following statement of distances is worth remembering: Charlotte, Mecklenburg county, is on the line of the Danville Railroad, 158 miles W. S. W. of Raleigh. Salisbury, Rowan county, the next point of importance on the same line, is 118 miles west of Raleigh and 40 miles north of Charlotte. Greensboro', Guilford county, is 86 miles W. N. W. of Raleigh, and 45 miles N. E. of Salisbury. From Greensboro' to Danville, (Va.), the depot of Richmond, the distance is 45 miles by the line of the railroad. The two points of most importance between Wilmington and Raleigh are Fayetteville and Goldsboro'. Fayetteville is on the left bank of Cape Fear river, sixty miles south of Raleigh, and one hundred miles north-west of Wilmington. At that point is an arsenal of construction and the town is the focus of a system of plank roads. Goldsboro' is on the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad, fifty miles south-east of Raleigh and seventy miles north of Wilmington. The Union forces, aggregating probably eighty thousand men, are advancing into North Carolina from three directions—from South Carolina, from the coast, and from East Tennessee. The advance of the column from the mountains toward the railroad between Salisbury and Danville, will compel Beauregard to continue his retreat, to escape an attack in flank or the destruction of communication with Lee, and therefore, a serious engagement can hardly be expected on that line south of Greensboro'. Sherman may follow Beauregard as the rebels anticipated, or, having completed the destruction of the railroad south of Charlotte, may strike across the country to form a junction with Schofield at Fayetteville or Raleigh. The Capital of the State is the probable rendezvous of the Union forces. Raleigh is in Wake county, a few miles west of the Neuse river, 148 miles N. by W. of Wilmington, 60 miles N. N. E. of Fayetteville, and 120 miles S. W. of Petersburg. The city is connected by railroad with Weldon on the north, Goldsboro' on the east, and Greensboro' on the west. Wake county is the most populous in the State, and previous to the war was a stronghold of Whigs, Americans, Conservatives, or any other organization opposed to the Calhoun Democracy. The central section of North Carolina, in which our armies are about to operate, has an agreeably diversified surface, much fertile soil, and many good farms. Free from the swamps of the coast region or the rugged and barren mountains of the west, this central belt of country is healthy, well-supplied and well-adapted for military operations. As the rebel papers are prohibited from publishing any news, it is likely we shall get no further intelligence from Sherman for several days, unless couriers make their way to the coast.—[Sac. Union.]

Our navy is already quite equal to the combined navies of England and France, and in five years more we shall be absolutely without a rival in maritime power.—[Ex.]

How is that? If our navy is already quite equal to the combined navies of the two nations above mentioned, how can we have a rival? Is there any nation (excepting our own) with a larger navy than England or France? We think not.

INDICTED.—The other day the Grand Jury of Alpine county indicted J. C. Robinson and Henry Cook, two lawyers, for practicing law without having filed their oath of allegiance.—[Ex.]

Two or three of the lawyers in this county may find themselves in the same fix, one of these days.

On the 18th of this month Jeff Davis completed his fourth year as President of the Southern Confederacy.—[Express] Wonder how he likes the "posish," just now? Can the Express tell us?

GREENBACKS.—The effect of all the decisions of the Supreme Court of this State says the Bee on the greenback question may now be summed up as follows:

1. State and county taxes must be paid in gold coin.
2. A contract made in writing to pay in gold will be enforced.
3. Greenbacks are a legal tender for debts, where the debtor did not specifically contract to pay in gold.
4. Greenbacks are a legal tender for all debts contracted prior to the passage of the Legal Tender Act by Congress.

WELL MARRIED.—The Mariposa Free Press says a marriage was recently solemnized in Merced county between a loving pair who in their haste to join themselves in matrimony forgot to procure a license. The mistake was not discovered until they had been married nearly a week, when a license was immediately obtained and the ceremony again performed to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Coughs and Colds.
The sudden changes of our climate are sources of Pulmonary, Bronchial and Asthmatic Affections. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should at once be had to "Brooks' Bronchial Trochies" or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually averted. Public Speakers and Singers will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice. Soldiers should have them, as they can be carried in the pocket and taken on occasion requires.

In the afternoon of the above day, the deceased went into the store of Judge Evey, and went to the desk and commenced writing. Judge E. having business in another room went out, and was gone but a few moments when he heard the report of a pistol, and going into the store-room saw deceased laying on the floor with a pistol in his hand. Blood was flowing from his head, and up upon examining it, it was found that the ball from the pistol had entered at one ear and passed directly through his head, coming out at the other ear, causing death instantly. Upon going to the desk, the writing of the deceased was found. He stated that he intended to kill himself, and bid his friends farewell; that life was a misery to him, and had been for a long time, and that he had been trying to kill himself for some time past.

Deceased formerly lived in Placer county, but was a native of Dalnoga, Georgia, from whence he came to this State. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge at Rich Bar, and was a past master of that lodge. A Coroner's Jury was summoned and an inquest held over the body. The following is a copy of the verdict rendered by the Jury:

Squire Goodrich's Inquest:
WE, the undersigned Jurors, summoned to hold an inquest on the body of John S. Sims, deceased, are of the opinion that he came to his death by a pistol shot, the same being discharged by himself for the purpose of putting an end to his existence. In the store of Judge David Evey, on Smith's Bar, at or near three o'clock, P. M., on this first day of March, A. D., 1866.

Medical Advice.

Without intending to particularize any from among the many distinguished physicians of this city, we cannot avoid referring to the successful treatment of cases which have come under our observation, by Dr. W. K. Doherty, No. 521 Sacramento street, San Francisco, and the gratitude felt towards that gentleman by those who a short time ago, were tottering to the grave, and are now in the enjoyment of health and happiness, freed alike from their poisonous affections, and the equally deadly effects of vile drugs. That their gratitude was sincere, we have not the slightest doubt, as was also their regret for having wasted so much of their time and money on some of the old school physicians, without a particle of benefit resulting therefrom. We do not think we could better consult the public good than by advising all who are afflicted to give Dr. Doherty a call.—San Francisco News.

HARPER'S

NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

[Critical Notice of the Press.]

It is the foremost Magazine of the day. The friends never had a more delightful companion, for the million more enterprising friend, than Harper's Magazine.—[Methodist Protestant, (California).]

The most popular Monthly in the world.—[New York Observer.]

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellence of Harper's Magazine. It is a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as a witness of the American People; and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, ably illustrated with good cuts; and it combines in itself the very monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of a daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—[Traveller's Guide to American Literature, London.]

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as can not be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—[Boston Courier.]

California Subscriptions.

WATT'S NERVOUS ANTIDOTE!!

A Certificate of Cure that Every One Should Read!!

SAN FRANCISCO, AUGUST 1st, 1864.

MESSES. CRANE & BRIGHAM, DRUGGISTS—Cor. of Clay and Front Streets:

GENTLEMEN:—I notice an advertisement in the newspapers, that you are the Agents for WATT'S NERVOUS ANTIDOTE, and being satisfied that there were many persons in this State that are suffering with RHEUMATISM, that would gladly avail themselves of any preparation that would cure them, I thought it a duty I owed to suffering humanity, to make a statement of my case.

Some eight years since, while working upon a Railroad, I strained my back severely, by endeavoring to lift a car wheel, being in a profuse perspiration at the time, and being compelled to go home with a cost. I took a severe cold, which eventually brought on the Rheumatism which kept me confined to the house a large portion of the time for several years. I consulted most of the leading physicians in Sacramento, and in this city, visited the Warm Springs at Alameda, tried the various compounds that are advertised as cures for this disease, but all to no purpose. My back became paralyzed, and the pains in the back and chest became so intense, that I often wished myself dead. I could not sleep more than two hours of a night, my appetite failed me, and I grew emaciated day after day, until finally, I made up my mind that my troubles would soon be over. While waddling down Clay Street one day, in 1862, I met a gentleman with whom I was formerly acquainted. He enquired into my nature of my disease, and upon being informed he stated that he had several years before been similarly affected by the use of WATT'S NERVOUS ANTIDOTE. This was the first time that I had heard of the medicine, and I determined to give it a trial. I procured a half dozen bottles, and before I had used two of them I could sleep all night, my appetite had improved and I felt considerably easier. Encouraged by the apparent improvement, I determined to persevere in the use of it, as it was my only hope. I did so, and used it at intervals for two years. I found its effect slow but very sure, until now, I am entirely cured. I HAVE NOT HAD AN ATTACK OF RHEUMATISM FOR SIX MONTHS. My back is as strong and as well as ever, my leg is as good as new, my appetite altogether too good for my pocket, and I am physically as strong as I was ten years ago, and feel myself able to whip any man of my size and age in the city.

Noting that this plain statement of my sufferings and ultimate cure will fall under the eye of some one similarly afflicted that he may be benefited by my experience.

I am, Gentlemen, Your most ob'd't.

NOTE.—The gentleman who wrote the above card does not wish his name to appear in print, but it will be given to those who wish to see him personally.

WATT'S NERVOUS ANTIDOTE is for sale, Wholesale, by CRANE & BRIGHAM, Cor. of Clay and Front Streets, San Francisco, and by respectable Druggists everywhere. 4-3m

MENTAL pleasures never cloy; unlike those of the body, they are increased by and strengthened by enjoyment.

UNKILLED.—Ex-Assemblyman Sepulveda, reported killed in Mexico, has arrived at Los Angeles, safe and sound.

CHARLES LIEB, a somewhat noted Western politician, died at Prescott, Arizona, January 21, 1865.

SCHUYLER COLFAX, Speaker of the National House of Representatives, intends to visit California next summer.

INDIAN TRIBES.—There are within the limits of the United States ninety-seven tribes of Indians, with an aggregate population of about five hundred thousand.

Gov. FLETCHER issued a proclamation on Jan. 14th, declaring Missouri a free State, in accordance with the emancipation ordinance passed by the State Convention.

Five per cent. of the soil of England is not under cultivation; in Russia less than one-fifth is cultivated; in Sweden one-seventh; in Austria and Holland, one-fifth; in Switzerland, one-fourth; in France, fifty-four-hundredths.

In Paris, an enterprising woman, Madame Robert, furnishes a dinner daily to six thousand workmen for five sous each; her bill of fare being cabbage soup, a slice of boiled beef, a piece of bread, and a glass of wine.

PHIGHT.—General Williams and Col. Collins had a fistfight in Court at Virginia City the other day. The General hit the Colonel a "bat" under the ear, and the Colonel responded by putting the General's eye in mourning. They were fined $100 each.

"May I leave some tracts?" asked a missionary of a lady who responded to his knock.

"Leave some tracts? certainly you may," said she looking at him over her spectacles; "leave them with the heels toward the house, if you please."

THE Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal says, Mr. Blair was warmly greeted at Richmond, and the wife of President Davis actually threw her arms around the old gentleman and kissed him.

THE BULLETIN LIBEL CASE.—The Union's dispatch says that this case went to the jury at 7 o'clock last night, the Judge charging strong against the defendant. The jury brought in a verdict, at $45, for $1,500 damages against the Bulletin.

Some of the English papers are again expressing fears of an alliance between Russia and the United States. Whether or not there is any foundation for those fears, it is certain that of all the great powers in the world, Russia is the only one that has behaved decently towards us.

A GOOD RECORD.—George B. Mattoon, a New Hampshire boy, though only eighteen years old, has been in forty-three battles and twenty-seven skirmishes; had two horses shot under him; and during his whole three years' service has not received a single injury or been absent from duty a single day. This record is a good one to carry into manhood and old age.

"ALWAYS buy your chestnuts biled" said Mrs. Snow to Abemlech, who was about investing a penny in that little brown commodity, "cause the raw ones want looking after, and the wormy ones you have to throw away, but with the biled ones it don't make no difference—worms can't hurt nobody when they're biled."

A RELIGIOUS paper takes advantage of the flash style of advertising, and thus announces a sensation-book which may have been heard of by most readers: "For a story of thrilling interest, read the Bible. If you would know how much safer it is to act from principle than from expediency, read the Bible. No better work can be bought than the Bible. Read the Bible."

The best thing for a burn is the following, and every family ought to know it: As soon as possible after the burn, throw a little green tea into hot water; let it steep. Stir up an Indian meal poultice. Spread the tea leaves on the poultice, put it on the burn or scald, whichever it may be. If burnt with powder, it will take it out and the skin will be as clear as ever.

A TRENTON paper says: "A walk through the Morrisville burying ground, just over the river, will bring to one's notice a queer epitaph. It is to Samuel McCracken, a former resident of that village, and bears the following address: 'To the record of the birth and death: If all the leading politicians and priests go to Heaven, I want to get off at some other station.' To put this on his grave-stone was the order of the man by directions found in his will."

A PROSPECTUS for the Agricultural Fair at Stettin, Prussia, in May, has been received. Exhibitors should direct their letters to the Rentenbankbuchhalter Kurtz.

SHIPWRECK.—The schooner Shooting Star was wrecked at Fisherman's Bay, on the 14th inst., and three lives lost. She had gone there to take in a load of ties for the Napa Valley Railroad.

DEATH.—Judge E. W. Smith, formerly editor of the San Francisco Evening Journal and more recently of the Sacramento Star, died at the Bay on Tuesday night of cancer of the stomach.

Said a crazy woman, of a penurious, stingy man, an officer in the church, we regret to say, "Do you see that man? You could blow his soul through a humming-bird's quill into a mosquito's eye, and the mosquito wouldn't wick."

LITERARY.—We can no more readily deny to the Bulletin the possession of some literary ability than we can deny to the sow, which has but one pig, the exhibition of some literary capacity.—Flag.

GEN. THOMAS puts down Hood's losses in men and artillery from the time he crossed the Tennessee northward, at nineteen general officers, and about fourteen thousand men in killed, wounded and captured, and seventy pieces of artillery.
